

François Laviolette

François Laviolette brings over thirty years of experience in management, business development and communications. An entrepreneur at heart, he has founded and managed several businesses. He was responsible for overall management, organisational structure, personnel and sales/business development.

From 1976 to 1985, he was director of administration for a national non-profit educational organisation. He had overall responsibility for corporate management, systems, finance, legal, facilities and communications. He managed both volunteer personnel as well as permanent staff.

He has occupied senior international business development roles in the high-tech sector providing business re-engineering services, contract management services, implementation and roll-out services to various government and private sector clients.